

BRIDGES AND BOUNDARIES: AFRICAN AMERICANS AND AMERICAN JEWS

The tattered cloak of two cultures. A symbol of the relationship of African Americans and the American Jews. The pain and hope of which is captured in this revealing exhibition. The history of these two peoples in the 20th century is told through photographs, documents, artifacts and original art, that explore their shared concerns and common beliefs. At the same time it addresses the prejudices and the constant struggles within and between both, as they cut the cloth of their identities in the American culture.
