Doctors Ought to Care (DOC), a health activist organization, wishes to continue to register our concerns about today's events. 1. DOC feels that a big beer bash of this kind on Labor Day weekend is not a good idea. This event, no matter what precautions are taken, contains a multitude of health and safety risks. 2. DOC feels that it is inappropriate for a health charity such as Texas Special Olympics to accept money from the alcohol industry--especially given the thousands of children who are born each year mentally retarded due to the consumption of alcohol. 3. DOC feels that the alcohol industry should not continue to promote the association of alcohol with fun, sex, and parties (even more so at an event such as today's which thousands of young people under the legal drinking age will attend).
