HARLEQUIN Flake Tobacco

Is not merely a fancy name for an ordinary flake; it is a most distinctly novel production. It is manufactured on quite a new principle, and does not consist merely of a blend of several grades of leaf, as is usually the case, but principally of the manner in which the leaf is handled, and in the process of manufacture. By this means, not only is the natural aroma of the leaf intensely 'concentrated' and preserved, but the absolute 'uniformity' of every single flake is obtained.
