

Pub Board refuses to fire Feibelman

By CHARLIE WILSON

The Board of Publications Thursday stood firm on its decision naming Bert Feibelman, Fort Wayne, Ind., sports editor of next year's Crimson-White.

The Feibelman selection issue came before the board Thursday in the form of a verbal protest by next year's editor, Bruce Harrison, Lanett, who claimed that Feibelman was "not yet ready to assume the position," and asked the board seek the immediate resignation of Feibelman.

Harrison charged the board with "letting politics come before qualifications" in choosing Feibelman against the editor's recommendations.

Harrison had previously recommended to the board that it accept Phil Harrison, this year's assistant sports editor, for the post next year. The editor's choice was voted down by the board after other members pointed out that Phil Harrison was a fraternity brother of both editor Harrison and business manager Al Ritchey, Birmingham, and that another position-holder from the same fraternity would "look bad to outsiders."

Phil Harrison and Feibelman were the only two applicants for the sports editor position.

In Thursday's board meeting, editor Harrison asked that Feibelman be formally requested to resign, and that other applications for the position be accepted by the board. Harrison said that "several other" members of the sports staff—besides Phil Harrison—were "as well or better" qualified for the job.

Harrison said that he resented the fact that Phil Harrison was not chosen because he was both a fraternity brother and a blood brother, and said that the board should have asked the opinions of other members of the present sports staff before voting contrary to his recommendation. He felt sure, he said, that Gay Talese, this year's C-W sports editor, and other members of the staff would have backed him up, had they been asked.

Ram Editor Jim Montgomery,

Birmingham, a member of the board, said in the Thursday meeting that he "couldn't understand" why the board would choose a man that the editor of the paper had not recommended.

Johnny Wilson, Bay Minette, SGA president and also a board member, said that "the board has made a decision, and must stick to it, or it is defeating its whole purpose."

This year's C-W editor Charlie Wilson, Tuscaloosa, who made the motion that Feibelman be asked to resign and that the board accept new applications, said that Feibelman was "incapable" of holding the job, and that his two-week's handling of the paper's sports pages (April 28 and May 5 issues) proved as much. Wilson pointed out that this year the C-W lost its former All-American rating due to simple mistakes on the part of experienced staff members, and said that he could expect "nothing but the worst" from a staff position-holder who is not experienced.

Both Feibelman and Phil Harrison will be juniors next year. Feibelman is a member of Zeta Beta social fraternity.

Editor Harrison said that he was sorry that the "unappreciated" situation had come up, and said that he "sincerely hoped" that the problem would work itself out.

T-V may come to campus within a year says Harwood

By PAT CLARK

Bama students may be able to watch broadcasts from their own television station within a year's time, Dr. Kenneth A. Harwood, head of the department of radio and television, disclosed last week.

There are at present three proposals concerning the establishment of such a station before Dr. Gallalee. They are:

1. A request for a loan of $23,000 from the University to equip and install a closed circuit, student operated, commercial TV station.

A closed circuit station could be picked up only on campus in those buildings especially wired for it. Under the present proposal such wiring would be provided at no extra cost to the buildings using it.

2. A request for additional space in the third floor of the Union. Such space should be readily available if present plans to move all publications and student government offices to the Union Annex go through.

3. A request for funds to move all equipment at present in room 6 to rooms 22, 23 and 24 of the Union Building which would serve as the studio and control room of the new station.

Any further action toward the establishment of a campus television station must await the approval of Dr. Gallalee.

Univ. will offer Ph. D. in English

The University will offer the Ph. D. degree in English beginning with the fall semester of 1953. This announcement, released today by Dean A. B. Moore of the Graduate School, adds another to the list of graduate programs for the Ph. D. at Alabama.

Dean Moore called attention to the comprehensiveness of old and new course offerings, which will represent all fields in English and American literature from the beginnings down to the present day.

A total of 16 new English courses, besides current offerings on the graduate level, has been approved for Ph. D. candidates; many of these courses will also be open to students working for the M. A. degree.

For the next few years, dissertation for the Ph. D. degree in English may be written in only a limited number of fields.

Five divisions of the University are now represented in the doctoral program, inaugurated under the administration of Dr. Gallalee. In addition to the College of Arts and Sciences, these divisions offer doctoral work: the School of Chemistry, the School of Commerce, the College of Education and the Medical College of Alabama.

Dean Moore stated that, in accordance with University regulations, three types of financial aids will be available to applicants for the doctorate in English—non-service scholarships, service fellowships, and assistantships.

Students May Apply For Fiction Course

Students interested in creative writing may apply now for a class under the University's John C. Stewart to be taught next fall.

Interested student writers must be at least second semester sophomores, and must submit sample short stories or manuscripts to Stewart before fall registration.

From the two class sections totaling approximately 30 writers under Stewart, four or five students will be chosen for work under the University's Hudson Strode.

Students interested in signing up for the classes should address copy to John C. Stewart, Box 3238, University.

SGA cuts Crimson-White allocation; paper appeals to Student Life group

The Crimson-White has appealed a proposed 15-cent cut in the paper's student allocation to the Committee on Student Life.

The meeting, called to discuss whether the C-W needed as large an allocation as last year or whether the cut was justifiable, was held yesterday in the office of the dean of students, and at press-time, the outcome was unknown.

The cut announcement came from SGA President Johnny Wilson, Bay Minette, who recommended that the C-W get only 80 cents from each dollar of the student allocation fund next year, instead of the 95 cent allocation received this year.

A letter submitted to Student Life Committee Chairman Noble B. Hendrix by the C-W pointed out that printing prices will definitely be raised next year, that the volume of this year's advertising sales hit a new record—accounting for any profit made by the paper, and that making proof-reading trips to Haleyville each week will be an added cost to the paper. This year trips have been made only once every three weeks.

Business Manager Al Ritchey, Birmingham, called the proposed cut "impossible." He said that next year's advertising manager would "have to break all records" just to "make us come out even." Ritchey had, he said, asked the SGA for an increase in allocation before receiving word that the cut of 15 cents had been proposed.

Editor Charlie Wilson, Tuscaloosa, who—with next year's editor Bruce Harrison, Lanett—wrote the appeal to the Student Life Committee, said that the "approximate $700 cut, plus the raise in printing costs, would put the beginning deficit at almost $2000 for next year."

The S.G.A., along with some other organizations, received allocations increases, while the 15-cent cut was being imposed on the student newspaper.

Bud Skinner is chosen Bama's head cheerleader

By JIM PINKSTON

Bud Skinner, Tuscaloosa, will lead Bama's cheerleaders next fall.

Also boosting Bama spirit will be Skeeky Maffett, Florence; Billy Hodges, Bessemer; Joan Bond, Montgomery; Gay Gunter, Braircliff Manor, N. Y.; and Patsy Lord, Lafayette. Number one alternates are Ed Newell, Birmingham, and Jean Davidson, Tuscaloosa. Second alternates are Benny Briskey, Birmingham, and Pat Lawler, Spring Hill.

Six boys and eight girls were chosen from a slate of 24 for appearance in the finals.

Next fall a boy and girl will be chosen from among the freshman and transfer students to act as regular cheerleaders.

The new cheerleaders elected Bud Skinner head cheerleader.

Judges for the tryouts were Miller Widemire, SGA; Ann Russell, WSGA; Jim Davis, A Club; Bud Willis, varsity football; and Pat Chestnutt, last year's head cheerleader. Jim Aman assisted in the tryouts.

Of the six cheerleaders chosen, four have had cheerleading experience at the Capstone. Skinner, Maffett, and Miss Bond were regulars last year and Miss Gunter was an alternate.

Commerce Professors Favor Quarter Over Semester System

Twenty five out of 40 professors in the School of Commerce think that the quarter system is better than the semester system.

This fact was brought out in a recent poll taken of the professors in Commerce School taken by Chi Alpha Phi, honorary statistics fraternity.

Those who share this opinion outnumbered by five to one those who feel that the semester system is the same in effectiveness. The ratio is six to one over those who feel that the semester system is more effective than the quarter system.

Some of the reasons given for this were: there is more concentration on fewer subjects; it fits the calendar better; and there is the elimination of Saturday classes.

Another fact brought out by the survey was that the most important factors in deciding on border line cases of a student's grade are attendance, trend of grades during the semester, class participation, and effort by the student.

While professor-student relations on the whole are good, they can be improved by having more social functions, open meetings by the honoraries and more student-faculty conferences.
